Evidence for a postulated precursor of voltage-sensitive calcium channels in the mammalian brain. A candidate for a putative precursor of voltage-sensitive calcium channels has been characterized biochemically in the mammalian brain. This precursor contained both Ca⁺⁺-binding (50 kDa) and Ca⁺⁺-dependent (100 kDa) activities. A neuroblastoma-cell line, N18, was used as a model for the precursor of the brain. The 50-kDa protein in N18 cell extracts was partially purified by DEAE-cellulose chromatography. This preparation had an apparent molecular weight of about 40 kDa as determined by sodium dodecylsulfate gel electrophoresis and by analytical ultracentrifugation. The 50-kDa protein bound ⁴⁵Ca⁺⁺ with high affinity. The binding of ⁴⁵Ca⁺⁺ was specific for Ca⁺⁺ and was inhibited by ionomycin and by lanthanum, both of which block a Ca⁺⁺ channel in the brain. The 50-kDa protein in N18 cells was converted to the calcium-dependent 100-kDa activity by 2-mercaptoethanol. When 2-mercaptoethanol was added to the crude extract, an increase in the 100-kDa activity was seen. The increase in the 100-kDa activity was specific for Ca⁺⁺ and was blocked by lanthanum 09e8f5149f
